SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. Teoria, the magazine of Communist theory, published by the Central Committee of the Mexican Communist Party, has reappeared under date of January 1949. Although this magazine was called a monthly, it has appeared but three times since its first issue in May 1947.
2. Ladislao Carbajal, the Cuban Communist leader, according to source, is largely responsible for the reissuance of Teoria. It was Carbajal's contention that it would be impossible to promote the growth of the Party in Mexico if the members of the Party were uneducated in the teachings of Lenin, Marx, and Stalin.
3. Dionisio Encina is the Director of the magazine, and a council of editors is listed as follows: Jorge Fernandez Anaya, Manuel Terrazas, Juan Pablo Sainz, and Rafael Alfaro. The magazine sells for fifty centavos a copy, and the January issue consisted of sixteen printed sheets in magazine form. Source states that each cell leader has been instructed to sell twenty copies to the employees of the factories in the Mexico City area.

25X1X6 [REDACTED] Comment. It is believed that the activity of the magazine will be limited, as it was in 1947, unless the Party is successful in obtaining funds other than those derived from the sale of the publication.
